THE PEDERAL CONGRESS.

HOUSE-DECEMBER 16. A personal explanation occurred between lesses. Conway and Funks, during which Mr. onway charged Mr. Fenke with a deliberate surpose to bring about a personal collision with-nt cause, and asked whether such conduct was not only unworthy a member of the House, bu characteristic rather of a blackground and scoundrel. [Sensation.] Mr. Fonks wanted to say one word in leply. Mr Sievens and others objected; they had enough of such things.

T e Speaker informed Mr. Fonke that no deate was in order.

Mr. Foulte, amid cries of order, was understeed to say that Mr. Conway was a disgraes to the nation and humanity. There the matter uded in the House. The House passed the bill to strike from the ension roll the names of all persons who have I taken up arms against the government, or in my manner aided the rebellion

Mr. Vallandigham, of Ohio, introduced the sllowing preamble and resolution: WHEREAS, The Secretary of the Navy has CINCINNATI, December 16.—The English ported to this House, that Capt. C.
